Disclaimer

The foregoing list is not exhaustive, and new risks may emerge from time to time. If any of these risks materialize or the Parties' assumptions prove incorrect, actual results could differ materially from the results implied by these forward-looking statements. Many factors could cause actual future events to differ materially from the forward-looking statements in this report. There may be additional risks that neither Tactical nor the Company presently know or that Tactical and the Company currently believe are immaterial that could also cause actual results to differ from those contained in the forward-looking statements. You should carefully consider the risks and uncertainties described in the "Risk Factors" section of the Company's Annual Reports on Form 10-K, Quarterly Reports on Form 10-Q, and other documents filed by the Company from time to time with the SEC and by Tactical from time to time with the CSA. These filings identify and address other important risks and uncertainties that could cause actual events and results to differ materially from those contained in the forward-looking statements. Forward-looking statements speak only as of the date they are made. Readers are cautioned not to put undue reliance on forward-looking statements, and Tactical and the Company assume no obligation to update or revise these forward-looking statements, whether as a result of new information, future events, or otherwise, except as required by law. Neither Tactical nor the Company gives any assurance that Pubco or Tactical will achieve its expectations.

Financial Information

Unless otherwise specified, the financial information and data contained in this Presentation is unaudited, does not conform to SEC requirements (including Regulation S-X), and is subject to Public Company Accounting Oversight Board audit, with respect to yearly data, and subject to auditor review, with respect to quarterly data. Accordingly, such information and data may not be included in, may be adjusted in or may be presented differently in, the Registration Statement. You should review the Company's and Tactical's audited financial statements, which will be included in the Registration Statement.

Non-GAAP Financial Measures

This Presentation includes financial measures which are not presented in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles ("GAAP"). Non-GAAP financial measures are not measures of financial performance in accordance with GAAP and may exclude items that are significant in understanding and assessing Tactical's financial results. You should be aware that the presentation of these measures in this Presentation may not be comparable to similarly titled measures used by other companies. Therefore, these measures should not be considered in isolation or as an alternative to net income, cash flows from operations or other measures of profitability, liquidity or performance under GAAP. The Parties believe that non-GAAP measures of financial results provide useful information to management and investors regarding certain financial and business trends relating to Tactical's financial condition and results of operations. The Parties believe that the use of non-GAAP financial measures provides an additional tool for investors to use in evaluating ongoing operating results and trends in and in comparing Tactical's financial measures with other similar companies. Non-GAAP financial measures are subject to inherent limitations as they reflect the exercise in judgments by management about which expenses and income are excluded or included in determining these non-GAAP financial measures. A reconciliation of projected non-GAAP financial measures has not been provided and is unable to be provided without unreasonable effort because certain items excluded from these non-GAAP financial measures cannot be reasonably calculated or predicted at this time. For the same reasons, the Company is unable to address the probable significance of the unavailable information, which could be material to future results.

Financial Forecast Information

Neither the Company's nor Tactical's independent auditors have audited, studied, reviewed, compiled or performed any procedures with respect to such information for the purpose of their inclusion in this Presentation, and accordingly, they did not express an opinion or provide any other form of assurance with respect thereto for the purpose of this Presentation. Such information constitutes forward-looking statements and should not be relied upon as being necessarily indicative of future results. In this Presentation, certain of the above-mentioned financial forecast information has been provided for purposes of providing comparisons with historical data. The assumptions and estimates underlying the financial forecast information are inherently uncertain and are subject to a wide variety of significant business, economic and competitive risks and uncertainties that could cause actual results to differ materially from those contained in the financial forecast information. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that such information is indicative of the future performance of Pubco or Tactical, or that actual results will not differ materially from those presented in such information. Inclusion of the financial forecast information in this Presentation should not be regarded as a representation by any person that the results contained in such information will be achieved.

Peak Project Overview

Peak is one of only a few rare earth hard rock Direct-Leach-Extractable projects in the world

Overview

- Located 68 miles southeast of El Paso, Texas and two miles southeast of the Round Top Rare Earth Elements project, operated by USA Rare Earth
- Found within the active Sierra Blanca Quarry (SBQ)
- Agreement in place with SBQ
 - Can extract from already mined tailings
 - Exclusive option to purchase all interests in the mining lease for the Peak Project
- The Peak Project is located on the northwest side of the Sierra Blanca laccolith which is composed primarily of Tertiary rhyolite porphyry; the Rare Earth Elements minerals occur within biotite in the rhyolite units

The Sierra Blanca range is a series of five volcanic peaks, or domes, of peraluminous rhyolite and rhyolite porphyry laccoliths emplaced in the western calc-alkalic side of the Trans-Pecos Magmatic Province⁽¹⁾

Risks Related to the Business Combination

- Events, changes and circumstances which are or may be beyond the control of the Company, Pubco or Tactical may give rise to the termination of negotiations and definitive written agreements related to the Business Combination.
- The consummation of the Business Combination is expected to be subject to a number of conditions, some of which will be beyond the control of the Company, Pubco and Tactical, including the approval of shareholders of the Company and Tactical. If those conditions are not met or waived, the Business Combination may not occur.
- Tactical’s operations may be restricted during the pendency of the Business Combination pursuant to terms of the definitive written agreement providing for the Business Combination.
- Some of the Company’s executive officers and directors may have conflicts of interest that may influence or have influenced them to support or approve the Business Combination without regard to investors’ interests or in determining whether Tactical is an appropriate target for the Company’s initial business combination.
- If the Company seeks shareholder approval of the Business Combination, its sponsor and members of its management team have agreed to vote in favor of such Business Combination, regardless of how its public shareholders vote.
- Both the Company and Tactical will incur significant transaction costs in connection with the Business Combination.
- There can be no assurance as to the timing of the commencement or completion of the SEC review of the Registration Statement relating to the Business Combination, or any other regulatory filings, which in turn will determine the timing of the closing of the Business Combination.
- Securities of companies formed through business combinations, such as the Business Combination with Pubco, may experience a material decline in price.
- If the Company is deemed to be an investment company for purposes of the Investment Company Act, it would be required to institute burdensome compliance requirements and its activities would be severely restricted and, as a result, it may be required to wind up, redeem and liquidate.
- The Company may not be able to complete the Business Combination or any other business combination within the prescribed timeframe, in which case the Company would cease all operations, except for the purpose of winding up, and the Company would redeem the Company’s Class A ordinary shares and liquidate.
- The announcement of the Business Combination could disrupt Tactical’s relationships with its suppliers, business partners and others, as well as its operating results and business generally.
- Changes in laws or regulations, or a failure to comply with any laws or regulations, may adversely affect the Company’s or Tactical’s business, including their respective ability to complete the Business Combination.

Risks Related to Ownership of Pubco’s Common Shares

- Following the closing of the Business Combination, an active trading market for Pubco’s common shares may not be available on a consistent basis to provide shareholders with adequate liquidity and may lead to significant volatility in the share price of Pubco’s common shares.
- Concentration of ownership of Pubco’s common shares among executive officers and directors of the Company and Tactical and their affiliates may prevent new investors from influencing significant corporate decisions.
- Pubco’s issuance of additional shares in connection with financings, acquisitions, investments, incentives plans or otherwise will dilute all Pubco shareholders.

Risks Related to Redemptions

- There is no guarantee that the decision of the Company’s shareholders to redeem their Class A ordinary shares for a pro rata portion of the Company’s trust account will economically benefit the shareholder.
- Failure to comply with redemption requirements could prevent a shareholder of the Company from redeeming their Class A ordinary shares for a pro rata portion of the Company’s trust account.
- If third parties bring claims against the Company, the proceeds held in the Company’s trust account could be reduced and the per-share redemption amount to be received by redeeming Company shareholders may be less than $10.00 per public share.

Risks Related to Tactical’s Business and Industry

- Tactical has a limited operating history, and there can be no assurance that Tactical will be able to commercially develop its project at the Sierra Balance Quarry located in Hudspeth County, Texas (the “Peak Project”) or other projects or achieve profitability in the future.
- Exploration and development have not commenced at the Peak Project. Once exploration and development begin, there is no assurance that Tactical will be able to generate a profit. If Tactical is unable to generate a profit, it may have to cease operations.
- The actual amount of capital required for the commissioning and ramp-up of the Peak Project may vary materially from Tactical’s current estimates, in which case Tactical may need to raise additional funds, which could delay the Peak Project and have a material adverse effect on its business, financial condition and results of operations.

- Tactical's business may be adversely affected if it is unable to secure additional funds to finance future exploration and development work.
- Tactical may be adversely affected by fluctuations in demand for, and prices of, rare earth elements ("REEs").
- The success of Tactical's business will depend, in part, on the growth of existing and emerging uses for REEs in products.
- An increase in the global supply of REEs products, dumping, predatory pricing and other tactics designed to inhibit Tactical's further downstream integration by its competitors may materially adversely affect Tactical's profitability.
- Tactical's ability to generate revenue will be diminished if it is unable to compete with substitutions for the REEs that it mines.
- Tactical is subject to a number of operational risks, including power outages or shortages affecting the Peak Project; increasing costs or limited access to raw materials; disruptions in transportation or other services; access to water; uncertainty in our estimates of REEs; labor matters/labor relations; cybersecurity breaches; and/or environmental, social and governance matters.
- An increase in prices of water supplies could negatively affect Tactical's future operating costs, financial condition, and ability to develop and operate a mine.
- Tactical depends on key personnel for the success of its business. The loss of key personnel or the hiring of ineffective personnel could negatively impact Tactical's operations and profitability.
- Tactical's profitability could be adversely affected if it fails to maintain satisfactory labor relations.
- A shortage of skilled personnel may further increase operating costs, which could have a material adverse effect on Tactical's results of operations.
- Because of the dangers involved in the mining of minerals, there is a risk that Tactical may incur liability or damages as it conducts its business.
- Tactical operates in a highly competitive industry, and industry consolidation may result in further increased competition.
- Tactical may not be able to convert commercial discussions with customers for the sale of REEs products into contracts, which could have a material adverse effect on its business, financial condition and results of operations.
- Tactical will need to process REEs to exacting specifications in order to provide customers with a consistently high quality product. An inability to perfect the REEs extraction processes to meet customer specifications could have a material adverse effect on Tactical's business, financial condition and results of operations.
- Tactical is subject to costs and risk associated with a complex regulatory, compliance and legal environment and may be adversely affected by changes in laws, industry standards and regulatory requirements.
- Tactical's resource development activities are subject to changes in government regulations and political climates, including with respect to required permits.
- Tactical may be exposed to certain regulatory and financial risks related to climate change.
- Social and environmental activism may negatively impact Tactical's exploration and development activities.
- Tactical will diligently investigate all title matters concerning the ownership of all mining claims and plans to do so for all new claims and rights to be acquired but may be affected by undetected defects in title and other third-party claims affecting its interests.
- Tactical's facilities or operations could be adversely affected by events outside of its control, such as natural disasters, wars, health epidemics or pandemics.
- Currency fluctuations may result in unanticipated losses and could have a material adverse effect on Tactical's business, financial condition and results of operations.
- Tactical is dependent upon information technology systems, which are subject to cyber threats, disruption, damage and failure.
- No mineral resource estimations have been completed at the project.
- Further exploration is required to assess the mineral resource potential.
- The decision to put a mineral project into production is the responsibility of the Issuer. If Tactical were to put the Peak REE Project into production, and to avoid making misleading disclosure, the Issuer discloses that the Company may not base its production decision on a Preliminary Feasibility Study, or a Feasibility Study of mineral reserves, demonstrating economic and technical viability. In addition, the Company also discloses of the increased uncertainty, and the increased economic and technical risks of failure associated with such production decision.
